

WAY MEN, BIG 4, THREATEN NEW STRIKE

Delay Priority on Fuel; Strike Peace in Sight

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago.—With a possible peace in sight in the coal strike, federal and state officials Saturday night withheld action calculated to bring about a speedy resumption of production, but continued preparations for such a contingency should settle plans fast.

The meeting Monday in Cleveland of John L. Lewis, head of the mine unions, and other union chiefs, with representatives of coal operators in the central competitive fields, was looked upon as the final independent peace effort of the warring factions. It was believed generally here, should the Cleveland conference fail, President Harding would take drastic action to end the strike.

Illinois producers were awaiting news in the meeting, believing acceptance of the proposal made by them Friday night would depend largely on the outcome of the parley. The Illinois producers offered to pay the old wage scale and make it effective until March 31, 1923, leaving the matter of wages and working conditions to board of arbitration, of disinterested persons mutually agreed on, or appointed by President Harding.

NATION-WIDE

Store Service

BACK in the Spring of 1902, in Wyoming, an Idea was born! It was strong, healthy, courageous! It was destined to grow; to become Nation-wide in all the things that, combined, go to make the Shoppers' Service Store Superior! At first small, it grew to tremendous proportions—not alone in size but in extent of service offered.

It was the Idea—"the precious jewel of business"—from which was to develop the long line of 371 J. C. Penney Company busy Department Stores located here and there, in 29 States.

That Idea of 20 years ago introduced a merchandising and selling policy of Quality, Service, Economy—a policy that has weathered the storms and attracted more than a million admirers.

By meting out Justice, Equality and Service alike to all our patrons and friends, this Company has won that which it has earned—Success!

Through this great system of stores—a purchasing power of tremendous proportions—savings created and given to the public—a store service that really serves—is afforded buying advantages which every man, woman and child regards both a profit and a pleasure.

Soon a J. C. Penney Company Store will be located here. Announcement of the opening date will be made in a few days.

Then there will be brought to your very door, buying opportunities of such exceptional character and value as have never been your privilege to enjoy in the past. Your shopping will then be a keen delight!

Davy Crockett used to say, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead." Economy is not a matter of saving; it is spending money to the best advantage. You can add materially to the effectiveness of your savings account by patronizing a store where the utmost is given for the least expenditure.

The J. C. Penney Company names its price—the same for all! In paying the price, you know you are getting the same square deal as your neighbor.

Money has an earning power and paying cash enables you to save on your purchases the amount of the losses other stores sustain in doing a credit business. Cash only—no charge accounts!

Carrying home your own purchases saves you the increase in prices that necessarily are added to pay the cost of delivery—horses, automobiles, their upkeep, delivery men!

And added to these important and far-reaching savings which you enjoy at a J. C. Penney Company Store, are the many advantages and savings that revert to you from the tremendous purchasing power of this organization.

A staff of Buyers is constantly in the World's greatest markets. Buying for 371 Department Stores, these Buyers are given the choicest goods and purchasing in immense quantities they obtain the lowest spot cash prices. These great savings revert to you in better merchandise at lower prices.

Thus it is seen that you can "go ahead" at a J. C. Penney Company Store with fullest assurance that "you're right." A few days more and this important advantage will be yours to enjoy and benefit thereby.

AT THE APOLLO
The Apollo's chief attraction for next week will be "Penrod" for "Freckles" Barry. Booth Tarkington's well-known series of the picture makes no pretence of "high brow" study; but offers an abctivity of American boyhood for school entertainment. An enterprising American youth can get into apparently the chief object Penrod starts out to demonstrate. One of the most popular scenes shows how he most ingeniously shows how he has borrowed his papa in amateur theatricals when Mrs. Laura Newbush produces her own children. The Children's Pageant of the Title is one of the best made by his mother and in the end of course, marries him herself. "The Love Special" has been seen before but is good enough to see twice. The appearance in it of Agnes Ayres and Theodore Roberts adds to its interest.

"Over the Border" will be a pleasant picture to see in this torrid summer weather. Many of the scenes are in the snow-laden forests where you are in the iron rank of comedians and is seen oftener than any of the others at present.

Everybody knows about "The Three Musketeers." It is a story of the Mounted Police who have risen to fame, in pictures at least, in the past few months.

St. George Parker, famed novelist, wrote the story on which the picture is based. The novel is "She of the Triple Chevron." A situation is created at the very beginning of the book when an Indian, Gulliver, who with his father smuggle whiskey across the border falls in love with a Mounted Policeman, Betty Compton plays the part of Jen with her usual grace and charm.

The story of "Love's Boomerang" is one of travelling circuses of France or the adoption of a little girl by a man who has been浪子 for a second time. The girl is left to the hand of his lady fair, complications ensue and a general fight ensues, during which the curtain is rung down.

Freckles Barry in the role of Penrod is said to give the most creditable and laughable performance of the year in this production.

"Freckles" has but a star in a number of pictures but he was a star in the heart of motion picture fans ever since he provided the greatest Freckles Barry and Clara Horton in Marshall Neilan's "Penrod".

Booth Tarkington's story of Penrod's many varied activities are unforgettable, carrying as they do the essence of youth. It is hoped that the picture will be a success, as it is said to be filmed just as Booth Tarkington wrote the story.

"Penrod" starring Jewel Carmen, will be shown at the Majestic on Saturday evening for a four-day run on Thursday. "Penrod" is an exciting mystery picture that forms an ideal entertainment. The mystery is not solved until the last reel, the suspense tangles are straightened out, Kenneth Harlan plays opposite Miss Carmen.

With "Penrod" will be seen the fast and vaudeville to be continued Saturday and Sunday with several short comedies.

AT THE MYERS

Starting Sunday and lasting through Saturday night, the Myers will offer free lectures in addition to the several comedies and news reels to be seen. On Sunday and Monday will be offered another double bill, "Over the Border" with Mary Miles Minter and "The Love Special" with Wallace Reid and Agnes Ayres; on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be seen "Over the Moon" with Mary Pickford and David Powell.

"Over the Moon" is one of the series of Realart pictures received with much favor at the Myers. The story, light and entertaining, is excellently suited to the picturegoer's taste. The scenes for the most part are through with the same charm that has made her a favorite. A newspaper reporter, played by Mary Miles, is sent to get a story from the author. She begins a dance in his apartment as maid and then finding out how little he knows about women, breaks up the scene.

Rock County Phone Co. Passing into History After 22-Year Record

Another week will see the abandonment of the building which for many years has housed the Rock County Telephone company whose 22 years' existence came to an end with the purchase December 1, 1921, of the rock county telephone company by the Wisconsin Telephone company with which it is in the process of merging. Many of the most prominent business and professional men of Janesville were connected with it at various times.

The Rock County Telephone company sprung up in Janesville at a time when the wave of the independent telephone companies was surging through the country. The first steps were taken at a meeting held on January 14, 1898. The incorporators were: Dr. W. H. Palmer, still president; John W. Winsans, former congressman and prominent attorney; Charles C. Russell, now of the law firm of Black, Russell and Richardson; Milwaukee, who at that time was a partner with Winsans; I. C. Brownell, well known dry-grocer, whose store was where tors was composed of Messrs. Palmer, Jackman, Brownell and Russell. These proceeded to the election of officers. W. H. Palmer was elected to the presidency; L. C. Brownell, vice-president; C. C. Russell, secretary; and A. P. Burnham, treasurer.

Capital stock was $50,000. On July

IDENTIFIED WITH TELEPHONE SINCE IT'S INVENTION

Richard Valentine.

In 1899 a telephone plant was bought and the operation started with 300 phones in use. The company had a large patronage in the business district, particularly A. E. Adams was chosen as manager.

There were many changes in those who composed the board of directors and the officers. In 1900, C. S. Jackman became vice-president, succeeding Brownell, and Richard Valentine became secretary and treasurer, succeeding both Russell and Burnham.

The offices being combined, Dr. Francis Grant became vice-president.

Mr. Burnham was elected treasurer; Mr. Murdoch, secretary, and H. C. Willits became manager.

In 1906 saw J. M. Bestwick elected a member of the board of directors in place of R. C. Bestwick; 1907, F. B. Farnsworth a director in place of J. M. Bestwick; George King in place of Dr. Francis Grant; Palmer, Richardson, Grant and Bestwick became directors again in 1909. H. D. Murdoch was elected treasurer and remained in this capacity until the end. Isaac Connors came on the board in 1910. In 1909 Richard Valentine was chosen secretary and general manager.

The Bell Telephone system several times attempted to buy the Rock county company after it became such a large factor in telephone organization in Janesville. When the company offered to buy the stock at 11%

and Valentine took their places on the board.

Changes in Presidency.

In 1910, Dr. Farnsworth succeeded

Dr. Palmer as president; J. L. Bestwick was elected vice-president; H. D. Murdoch, treasurer; and Richard Valentine, secretary and general manager.

R. M. Bestwick came on the board again in 1914 in place of J. M. Bestwick and Fred Howe was chosen in 1915 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Isaac Connors.

In 1917, Dr. Palmer threw down the reins as president and Y. H. Howe was elected president. This was the year when M. P. Richardson came on the board in place of Dr. Farnsworth and Dr. W. H. Jude was elected in place of R. M. Bestwick. M. P. Richardson was elected vice-president; Mr. Valentine, re-elected secretary; Mr. Murdoch, again treasurer; and Dr. Jude, assistant secretary.

Did Farnsworth die?

In 1919, Patrick Connors and Dr. Farnsworth were chosen as directors in place of Mr. Valentine and Dr. Jude. This was the year that Mr. Valentine retired from active management of the concern with which he was long identified. M. P. Richardson was elected secretary; Dr. Farnsworth, vice-president and Mr. Murdoch, treasurer. This organization remained the same until the company was merged with the Bell system.

The company prospered and every year except the last paid either 3% or 4% per cent dividend semi-annually on the capital stock.

Just who was the originator of the Rock County company is not known.

The originator, as far as records show, among those who met on the first occasion—Winsans, Brownell, Richardson and Russell. The reason was the dissatisfaction with the Bell telephone system and its service.

Need of Tolerance in Labor Disputes

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington — Tolerance is a virtue too little practiced in labor disputes by parties directly concerned and by the public which suffers inconvenience, hardship or loss as result of the controversies. Intemperate condemnation of one side by the other or by outsiders is too common. Facts are misstated or distorted through passion. Opinions are based on prejudice rather than on information and sound judgment. Ill advised conclusion are formed.

These are statements made by a man whose profession has brought him in close contact with conflicts between capital and labor for years. He said one of the great needs of the present is not only a better understanding between employer and employee but a better understanding by the public of the problems of industrial relations. In fact, until an enlightened and sound public opinion has been established there is little hope for anything approximating permanent industrial peace.

Hence it is urged that the citizen sufficiently interested to discuss the railroad or the coal strike, should take pains to inform himself of the essential facts in connection with these great labor conflicts. The fact that he has been inconvenienced by the dislocation in the transportation industry does not justify the conclusion that either railway workers or railway managements are wholly at fault. Nor does his finding himself with an empty coal bin with winter at hand warrant off-hand judgment against either the miners or operators. In any event, dawdling and excusing one side or the other will not help.

Fred and easy criticism of public officials dealing directly with these controversies is another evil complained of, as it militates against the creation of that intelligent popular sentiment that should support those in authority. These officials are concerned for inaction or for whatever action they may take, without rhyme of reason.

For example, President Harding's position with respect to the rail and coal strikes is difficult and trying. According to their personal prejudices people denounce him for favoring labor or capital or for failure to adopt extreme measures that appeal to the individual as highly desirable and efficacious. How often is the expression heard "I'd like to be in Harding's place about 24 hours — I'd show 'em!" And how seldom have those who indulge in such expressions thought out way and means of doing what they advocate or considered all possible consequences!

Taking over the railroads or the mines, or making men work against their will, or putting an end to lawless outbreaks, are talked about as if they were simple tasks the President could undertake and dispose of any morning between appointments with his cabinet ministers. Settling strikes is discussed as if it could be accomplished by executive fiat. Using the army is advocated as if it were a mere matter of calling out the police reserves to quell a near-riot among baseball fans.

Most unreasoning and unreasonable of all, structures are passed upon the president that are predicated on the assumption he is indifferent and uninformed. As a matter of fact he could not be indifferent if he so desired and no one is in a position to be so well informed as he. This is not only true of Mr. Harding, but it would be true of any man occupying the executive chair.

"Taking sides" is characteristic of the American people. They go it in sports, in politics, in religion and in labor controversies. There is nothing half-hearted in the way they do it. Having espoused a cause or an idea the average man wants the wide, wide world to know it is right, why he is right, and what he thinks of the other side. He is a free thinker and he believes and indulges in free speech. He is so certain of his own convictions and opinions that he has little respect and less tolerance for those of others.

One thing has been accomplished: that is the acceptance of the rail Labor Board as an established body with power to act and it will eventually be given some real backing to carry out its orders. But we have coal rationing because we cannot get coal and if we could get it we have inadequate transportation—mining, road operations and transportation being so closely related and interdependent.

If the United States finds it has to put the roads in the hands of receivers and let the receivers operate them it will be another hardship. Several million shares of stocks in the roads are owned, not by the millionaires but by the people throughout the country. This point seems to be overlooked entirely by both the employers and the employees. However, what the public wants is that the roads shall again function and at once and if every economic law has to be violated to secure that end, will accept that rather than to have a summer's work in field and factory ruined and crops rot at shipping points. The seniority rule looks like a small piece of gravel in the shoe to the man on the verge of disaster, the household facing a coalless winter or the factory shut down for want of transportation facilities.

Death plays them all with equal favor: the auto at the railroad crossing, the train at the open switch and the four lakes at Madison.

FAIR WEEK

In spite of the fact that we have been having a fair in Janesville for most of the years since we've been back in 1851, each recurring Fair Week brings added interest to both the old and the new generation.

This year the Janesville fair will be as before and also not as before. We have a careless, off-hand way of saying that every circus is like another circus and there is no use going to see this particular one advertised, but when the time comes you are right there in front seat as close as possible and buying the same old peanuts at the same old price. That is the way of the fair.

You go because you are interested in seeing whether there isn't something different. There always is something different and that is why we continue the annual pilgrimage to the fair grounds.

Janesville is to have a most excellent program and the night fair promises to be an added attraction this year far beyond that of any we have had heretofore. This will give a large number of people who are unable to attend the fair in daytime, an opportunity previously denied them.

Fair week ought to be a splendid success and later on the Evansville Rock county fair should add its fine exhibits and large crowds to make another success.

A Missouri newspaper thinks one way to end war will be to let the privates stay back with the generals.

RILEY YOUNG AND FILLED MILK

Riley Young was the father of the filled milk bill and his persistence saw that the bill became a law. That is the record of the legislature. Headed by E. J. Gross, La Follette leader of Milwaukee and the man who placed La Follette in nomination at the Chicago convention at which Warren G. Harding was nominated president, a lobby led the opposition in the legislature.

Kansas must be getting blase. The anti-philist candidate for superintendent of schools was defeated.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

BE GREAT THIS MINUTE.

This is what the world is seeking: Honest effort, honest speaking. This will earn its brightest shilling. Labor that is patient, willing. Not the brilliant deed and clever, But the steady, sure endeavor. Unto God and duty loyal. That's what the world calls royal.

I need me, son, and never grumble At a task because it's humble. Just remember every day Is the seed of greater beauty. And the history of glory Is a very common story. Every crown which man possesses Symbolizes small successes.

Here's the road to high promotion: Unto duty devout. Small the task, but gladly do it. Though it irks, be faithful to it: Never try from fame to borrow. Never wait for some tomorrow. Or a test with greatness in it. Do your best. Be great this minute.

Who's Who Today

SENATOR REED SMOOT

The defeat of Porter J. McCumber for the republican nomination for senator from North Dakota means the chairmanship of the committee on finance of the senate will devolve upon the senior senator from that state. It will be the first time in history the post has been held by a man from the Rocky mountain region.

The man is Reed Smoot, first Mormon to hold such a position and the first of that faith prominent in shaping affairs of the nation. Senator Smoot is now in his twentieth year in the senate; under rule of seniority he will succeed next March as chairman of the committee to which all matters relating to raising revenue and taxing the people, fiscal and financial policies, etc., finally go. It is the one committee of the Senate whose deliberations and decisions directly concern every man and woman in America.

Reed was born in Salt Lake city 60 years ago. His father was a Kentuckian, his mother a Norwegian. He was graduated from the Brigham Young Academy and is an apostle of the Mormon church. He was a member of the republican national committee, 1912 to 1920.

All employers and all leaders of labor are not so blindly prejudiced as these two men, otherwise the only way capital and labor would be brought together would be in a head-on collision.

Unfortunately, these two men are multiplied many times in the industrial world, adding immeasurably to the difficulties of those who seek to preserve peace or reconcile differences once open conflict has been precipitated.

Everyone who has undertaken the role of arbiter in a labor dispute knows too well there are two sides to every case; that neither side has a monopoly of right or virtue. In the present railroad controversy, emphasis is frequently laid on the fact that the shop men refused to abide by a decision of the Labor Board and went on strike in violation of that decision. Those who make a point of that should be informed that the first refusal to abide by a decision or order of the board came from the managerial side when certain railroads undertook arbitrarily to put wage decreases into effect while the board had ruled such action should not be taken pending its hearing and determination of the question. Later other roads ignored or violated other rulings or decisions.

All who discuss this rupture should know there is nothing in the law that requires either side to accept or abide by decisions of the board.

Again, take the coal strike, those who criticize the miners for not accepting President Harding's peace proposal should understand that as matters stand the miners had practically won their strike and had good reasons for not wanting to take the chance of having the fruits of victory taken from them by arbitration. They had fought a long and trying fight and surely were entitled to all of whatever success it had brought them.

At the same time, friends of the miners should understand that if the workers had been conceded everything they were striking for—a national agreement, the old wage scale, and the old working rules—they would be no better off than prior to April 1, for nothing would have been done to cure uneconomic conditions in the coal industry.

Thus the case is made for tolerance of the rights and opinions of others in times of open conflict between workers and employers, and for development of an intelligent public opinion.

The Tattooed Arm

By Isabel Ostrander

What horrible and mysterious power was forcing the three Drake brothers—William, Wall Street broker; Roger, eminent scientist, and Andrew, recent return from Australia—to place themselves in perilous situations? Some power had forced Hobart to deliver a mock address in the public square, Roger to burlesque a scientific address and Andrew to sit at a piano and sing songs with toys. The three appear terror-stricken, and without their knowledge.

PATRICIA DRAKE, daughter of Hobart, secured DES, detective sergeant, and his colleague, SCOTTIE BRECKEADY, to investigate.

Miles is employed as a houseman and Scottie as gardener. Following a series of mysterious events which Miles cannot understand as he and Patricia were in each other's confidence. Possibly the attempt of her spinster aunt, Mrs. JANE DRAKE, to break up the love affair with RICHARD JELM, has been the cause. Miles is suddenly summoned by Hobart Drake.

Miles had entered quietly and Andrew turned with a smile.

"William, eh?" He added an oath.

"Who else are you, survivor?"

"A special agent employed by a member of this family to protect their interests, sir," Miles replied, still respectfully.

"You, John?" Hobart took a step forward. "By gosh, you've gone too far!"

"It is the end!" Jerusha Drake bowed her proud head and buried her face in her hands.

"I suppose that lunatic upstairs wanted to you and saw a chance of making a fat fee out of you muck-raking Andrew."

"I was consulted by my ward, Patricia Drake, who is safe and in good hands," Miles responded. "I am co-guardian with her father. As for my cheap private detective," Sergeant Owen Miles from Police Headquarters will speak for himself."

"Really, I feel that I am de trop—" Grayle rose slowly from his chair.

"No, you don't!" Andrew leaped for him. "Can't you see it's a plant?"

"That we are done for? You'll take my medicine the same as me!"

"Are you mad?" The spare, white-haired figure threw him off with unexpected strength, and turned in offended dignity to Hobart. "Mr. Drake, your brother!"

"He is not his brother!" A nasal, feminine voice, shrugging with anguish at the sight, all as Orra Hawks slipped through the opened French window from the veranda and pointed an accusing finger. "That man is not Andrew Drake!"

At the same moment Malice Gray, flamboyant even in crisp new widow's weeds, entered the door with Scottie and the impressive Barker behind her.

"Not—not Andrew!" Miss Drake seemed oblivious to the arrival of the trio as she lifted astounded and horrified eyes to the race of her old friend.

"Andrew Drake died in Australia three years ago," Miles said gravely.

"This lady will be able to inform you of the identity of the impostor."

"He's not dead, but he's here," she drew herself up with a laugh.

"In? I never laid eyes on 'im until last week, but I can tell you right enough 'oo that w'e'red old cove is 'E's Bon Gray, my lawfully wedded 'usband, as left me and the Salisbury Repertory Company in Victoria two years ago!"

The erstwhile naturalist sprang for the door, but Miles, recovering himself, called sharply:

"Farrell! Marks! Here are your men!"

Gray struck out blindly but Marks seized him in an iron grip and Scottie tore off the white wig and revealed the sleek, close-cropped black hair which more naturally accorded with the culprit's bright, dark eyes and stalwart, athletic frame. Farrell was watching the man who posed as Andrew Drake and who had at once regained control of himself. He stood waiting quietly with a half-smile upon his lips.

"Marks, take Gray into the drawing room," Miles ordered. "Farrell, roll up the right sleeve of the man who calls himself Andrew Drake and take off the bandage."

A gasping cry came from Jerusha but Miss Hawks moaned:

"That was what deceived me so thoroughly when he was putting on his coat out in the garden the first day I called."

The pseudo-Andrew set his teeth but he made no show of resistance when the bandage was removed and on the still inflamed surface of his arm appeared the blurred, intertwined letters "H" and "O."

"You thought they were your own initials, did you not, Miss Hawks?" Miles asked gently. "Forgive me for reporting an old wound, but that touch of sentiment for a time blinded you to certain inconsistencies which the Drake family themselves had failed to note?"

She nodded humbly in an obvious effort to control her emotion and the detective went on:

"In reality the initials are his own, as far as the police records of Australia show. His name is Hugh Osborne and he, too, is badly wanted but not for the same crime as his present accomplice. Will you tell Mr. Wells and your old friends here that the first doubt of his identity entered your mind?"

"I called here yesterday, but as I grew reminiscent and he betrayed an utter ignorance of the incidents I mentioned, I was compelled to leave him in the lurch."

"He is to do this after you have left the room; and before shutting the door behind you, you tell the audience that upon returning you will be able to identify him immediately, which is the right one, the left one having been raised."

"I'm never laid eyes on 'im until last night, but I can tell you right enough 'oo that w'e'red old cove is 'E's Bon Gray, my lawfully wedded 'usband, as left me and the Salisbury Repertory Company in Victoria two years ago!"

REPUBLICANS LIKE VICTORY OF REED

Primary Result Taken as Split Among Ranks of Democrats.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright, 1922, by the Janesville Gazette.

Washington—Senator James Reed's victory in the democratic primaries is the political sensation of the moment. He, not because the Wilson democrats are disappointed that Reed is riding Long lost, or the republicans are jubilant because an anti-league of nations man triumphed—but because both democrats and republicans admit the chances are brighter that a republican will be elected United States senator from Missouri next autumn.

As a personal proposition, the republicans wired Jim Reed to win. They do not care how he fought alongside of them in the treaty fight after the war and they admire his courage. But when it comes down to hoping for Jim Reed's re-election to the senate in November that's a different story and the republican leaders are beginning to say that the sores of the primary cannot be healed in time to help Reed and that a republican will be added to the senatorial list from Missouri.

Bitterly Antagonistic

The fight between Long and Reed was mostly one of bitter antagonism to Reed rather than admiration for the nomination of Long.

The latter has a likable personality and a good approach politically, but, there is no question that many democrats who voted for him didn't think him of senatorial caliber. As between Reed and Long, however, they disliked Reed so much that they would have registered their protest in any way that was offered. Now that Reed is the victor, the plain truth of the matter is that enough democrats in Missouri are sufficiently independent of party ties to throw their strength to a republican candidate.

Naturally Mr. Reed will make an effort to recover some of the democratic vote which was obviously opposed to him. But his majority wasn't big enough to make certain a triumph in the autumn for the democratic-republican fight. In the last election the vote was shown that the state shifted by narrow majorities. Even if Reed can recover half of the Long vote, or three-quarters of it, it would not be enough to win.

Reed Great Campaigner

As a campaigner Jim Reed has few equals in American politics. He may swing votes galore before the elections roll round. He is shrewd enough to make a bid for the Wilson vote in Missouri and to let it boldly though, in similar circumstances, Democratic candidates who have found a divided party in their campaigns have turned to the republicans for support. Former Senator La Follette, for instance, was one of the men who used to count on republican voters every time he ran, and that's why more than once he was able to exhibit his independence of the Wilson administration.

Apart from the result in Missouri, the republican administration can privately derive much encouragement from the defeat of Representative Phil Campbell of Kansas, chairman of the rules committee of the house. Just as Senator McCumber as chairman of the finance committee has shown a disposition to follow the independence of the Wilson forces, so it has been difficult every year for the administration to get Chairman Campbell to give a rule whereby important legislation could be brought to an early vote. It is an open secret that Mr. Campbell's unwillingness to give the administration a rule so as to bring the subsidy bill to a vote has been a handicap to Mr. Harding's pet measure.

Democrats Still Hope

The democratic leaders here do not take a pessimistic view of any of the elections. The Missouri contest they regard as a personal affair with extraneous influence brought in by Mr. Wilson's earlier letters on Mr. Reed's personality. The same goes for the other states of the nation. As for Mr. Campbell's defeat in Kansas, they point to it as a sign of the times. Mr. Campbell himself says idle strikers voted almost solidly against him. That straw is naturally made the most of by the democrats, who count upon the cumulative power of all the discredited elements in the country to swing congress in their direction next fall.

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR REFUSES EXTRADITION

St. Paul—Governor Freas Friday denied the extradition request of the state of Wisconsin for John J. Matthews, wanted in Milwaukee on a charge of larceny by bailiffs. The governor found that personal debts between Matthews and his partner, complaining witness was the basis for the charge. Matthews agreed to go to Milwaukee of his own accord and straighten up the affairs of the partnership.

MAD KAISER PLOTS TO REGAIN THRONE

There is not any question as to the popularity of this scheme among our German army officials. But the grand plot of our conspirators does not end here. I have heard Baron Ketteler of Potsdam, Baron Landsberg, and even Ernst Dryander, former Court Captain, speak knowledgeably that once the monarchy is established under the symbolism of the Kaiser, it would be an easy matter for the Federal Diet to declare him mad, therefore incompetent. He could thus be kept in a special asylum and another royal Prince proclaimed as the new Emperor!

Frequent Conferences at Doorn

Whenever these monarchist conspirators and plotters arrive at Doorn long conferences are held, often lasting three or four days. During these periods the Kaiser grows unusually excited, and it is a pitiful sight to watch him while the plotters are picturing the grand rehabilitation of the Fatherland under the guidance of His Majesty. I have often wondered who would be classed the more insane, the Kaiser or his visiting co-conspirators.

About a year ago the hour of the Kaiser's departure was set and the poor old man gave orders to make preparations for a sudden and secret departure.

"But your majesty must remember that it is very dangerous venture he is undertaking," I said.

The Kaiser then flew into a terrible rage. It was a pitiful sight to behold. He walked back and Last Payment on City Hall Issue of 1903 to be Made This Year.

Within the next three months Janesville will complete payment in full for the erection of its city hall for which it has been paying on the installment plan for the past 21 years. The last of the outstanding bonds against the building, only $2,500, will be taken up Nov. 1, 1922 and the last of the interest coupons will be cashed then.

Next year will mark final payment on two other city bond issues—the Douglas school and the Court street bridge. It will not be until that the next bond issue will be taken up. This will be the one issued for building the main outlet sewer in 1908, according to a report by City Clerk E. J. Sartell.

Two Issues for City Hall

Two separate bond issues were floated for the construction of the city hall, the first one for $65,000 having been issued Nov. 1, 1902 for both the city hall and public library.

This bore interest at 4 per cent and the bonds matured at the rate of $4,000 annually for the first 10 years and $5,000 per year for the succeeding 16 years, so that it took 13 years to take up this issue. The final payment on it was made in 1920.

Interest during the 19 years of this $65,000 issue cost the city $26,230, the records show.

The second and final issue for construction of the city hall, and the one to be paid up this fall, was for $25,000, dated January 1, 1902 and bearing interest at 4 per cent. This issue was paid off at the rate of $1,000 per year for the first 10 years and $1,500 per year for the remaining 16 years. Interest on this second issue cost the city $1,500, making a grand total of $37,750 for the two bond issues and interest.

City Near Debt Limit

Janesville is near $45,000 of the state's bonded debt limit for cities, according to a report just compiled by City Clerk E. J. Sartell. The report includes as part of the indebtedness the sum of $321,500 in water works mortgage certificates about which there is some question as to whether they constitute a municipal indebtedness. The attorney general has held that they do, although the new general charter law says they do not come within that category. However, for the purpose of paying "safely first," the city is going on the assumption that it is.

The funded indebtedness on August 1, as figured by the City clerk, including the water certificates, was $1,440,000. The statutes provide that a city may make Janesville's limit $1,454,750.

Bonds Run to 1942

Some of the bond issues will not mature until 1942. The city pays off a certain amount each year rather than provide a sinking fund to take up the end of the world debt.

Following are the bonds outstanding, as listed by the city clerk on August 2:

City Hall, second issue—Due Nov. 1, 1923, four per cent, outstanding $3,000.

Court street bridge—Due March 1, 1923, four per cent, outstanding $1,000.

Douglas school—Due July 1, 1923, four and one-half per cent, outstanding $1,000.

Jefferson school—Due in 1925, four per cent, outstanding $4,000.

Main street bridge—Due in 1927, four per cent, outstanding $12,500.

Fourth avenue bridge—Due in 1929, five per cent, outstanding $10,500.

Racine street bridge—Due in 1928, five per cent, outstanding $8,000.

Milwaukee street bridge—Due in 1932, five per cent, outstanding $10,000.

Water works bonds—Due in 1937, five per cent, outstanding $45,000.

Jackson street bridge—Due in 1938, five per cent, outstanding $5,000.

High school foundation—Due in 1939, five per cent, $34,000.

Permanent street improvement—Due in 1938, six per cent, $140,000.

BRIEFS BY WIRE

Durham, N. C.—The Durham Gun company of the national guard left for Raleigh to guard the penitentiary, where it was reported a mob had gathered with intent to

Monarchist's Disagreements

However, the venture was abandoned in the last hour because of a very serious disagreement among the conspirators themselves. All the proposed monarchist revolutionaries, however, will be because there is a strong division of opinion in the ranks of the conspirators on the fundamental aspects of the venture. For instance, about three months ago a special courier came to Doorn house with the intelligence from the high-placed plotters in Berlin that while Ludendorff was favorable to the return of the Kaiser as the Emperor, Hindenburg had stated that he was thoroughly opposed to the principle of a monarchist revolution at the time and that he would defend the present regime with his life.

I do not say that Hindenburg overexpressed himself in this manner, neither can I say that he did not. Nevertheless, this news was sufficient to send the Kaiser into a furious rage. For nearly an hour he raved against the popular German commander and praised Ludendorff to the skies, declaring that the latter was really the genius of the German army, "under my guidance."

Does Not Like Hindenberg

After the departure of the special courier the Kaiser sent for me and for two hours extolled his own high military talents, claiming that Ludendorff was a dim-witted army officer.

During this unusual armistice, moreover, I had on many occasions observed the Kaiser's knowledge pertaining to military matters, and I have also had many opportunities to study him under fire on the far away outskirts of the battle ground. I had my opinion formed regarding his military skill and valor, therefore his self-praise appealed to me pitiful to listen to.

The organization which is now being used to further monarchist aspirations was set in motion within three weeks after the signing of the armistice. I know this to be a fact because I myself was carried away with the zeal of the younger officers and was, among the first hundred to enlist in the movement. It was as the consequence of the Kaiser's frequent changes in the personal serving him, during his exile.

My predecessors both at Amerongen and Doorn were, in the beginning, sincere partisans of the Kaiser. But, like myself, a few weeks' stay with him, brought them to the very sad realization that in the effort to remain loyal to the Kaiser and serve the Fatherland we were becoming partners in the coming revolution.

For nearly an hour he raved against the popular German commander and praised Ludendorff to the skies, declaring that the latter was really the genius of the German army, "under my guidance."

Women's Guest Golf Tournament Idea May Be Enlarged

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus

SUCCESS OF MEET HERE FRIDAY IS START OF SCHEME

Successful was the women's guest golf meet held here Friday under the auspices of the Janesville Country Club that it may be taken up by other clubs and enlarged upon. With 50 women present from Beloit, Rockford and this city, plans are already on foot to do away with the former inter-city match plan.

Under the proposed arrangement, guest tournaments would be held at Janesville, Beloit, Rockford and probably Madison. Instead of one club holding home and home matches with another, all four cities would hold games between their grounds. This would make three, and perhaps four, large meetings a year.

The winners:

In Friday's games, low gross was won by Mrs. Head of Beloit, who turned in a 50, playing excellent golf. In low net score in the morning play, Mrs. Zillie of Rockford, and Mrs. Carpenter of Rockford, were tied at 30. On the play off, one of her, Mrs. Zillie was the victor.

After luncheon, of which 50 partook, the driving contest was won by Mrs. Cleophas of Beloit. She executed a beautiful drive of 175 yards.

The two-ball foursome was won by Mrs. Carpenter of Rockford.

Friday's prizes were donated by Messamans A. J. Granger; William McNeil, Louis Levy, N. L. Carter and Miss Catherine R. Fifeid, all of Janesville.

Those in charge:

Miss Fifeid was chairman of the games. She was assisted by Messamans Frank Blodgett and Hugh McCoy and Miss Josephine Carle. Mrs. McCoy was in charge of arrangements, assisted by Messamans Blodgett, Charles Touton, J. J. Wilcox, Roy Wisner and Miss Catherine Miller.

Mrs. Charles Touton was in charge of the luncheon, assisted by Messamans Walter Atwood and Louis Levy. Mrs. J. M. Whitehead was chairman on the decorations committee, with flowers and bouquets for the tables supplied by the garden club. Lemonade and cake was served buffet style.

Misses Talman was cashier. Those who aided on the tables were Messamans H. W. Fick, Arthur Burnham, Charles Gage, H. H. Bliss, E. W. Brewster, Arthur Baumann, William McNeil, Fred Sheldon and Miss Harriet Saenger.

Black Cats Take on Magnolia Team

Strengthened by the addition of several new men and a revised lineup the Afton Sluggers will play the Janesville Red Sox at the Fordson diamond at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The Hose squared out a 2-2 tie yesterday over the last weeks action, but that time the Stingers have improved and will doubtless put up a much stronger front. The three new faces will also be seen in the Sox uniform. Bork, Egbert and Buchanan. The lineup follows:

Red Sox—Utzig, c; Preuss, 1b; Viney, 2b; Miller, ss; Hong, rf; O. Schmidt, 3b; P. Schmidt, tb; Grass, ct; Berger, Gallagher, et; Kienow, lf; Tracy, K. Woburn, ss; Hefson, rf; E. Klem, 2b; H. Klem, 3b; H. Taber, rf; Hohendorf, p.

THE BUSINESS OF FARMING—DAIRY—FARM BUREAU—LIVE STOCK

INTEREST AROUSED IN FARM PROGRAMS

Abolish City Limits in County. Wide Projects to Make Rock First!

By LEWIS C. FRENCH.

NOT so long ago a group of city men were surprised to really learn first hand that farmers in Rock county control the key to the business situation of the country. These city men were untrained as to the different merits of the animal, nor could they understand pedigree or much of the record keeping of production records. The fact is there are many people who cannot and some of them do not care on the farms at that. But these city men could see the difference between good farming and indifferent farming with a viewpoint of obtaining more prosperity in the community.

A banker was talking to a retail merchant after this trip and he laid down this principle:

"We must take more interest in the welfare of the county. We are interested in that farmer with his wide district. I can now see where and why we here in the city have reason to fully cooperate with the farmer in the merchandising and sale of his output."

This banker was not a theorist. He had studied the problem and resolved that proper community interest demanded that there be no city limits when it came to a county business proposition.

The Rock County Farm Bureau on next Monday noon will meet with all bankers of Rock county to discuss agricultural work. The bankers will also be called to Madison for a conference on the financing of the new formed tobacco pool. This and the other city-country projects all mean that in the future the interests of the county as a unit will be considered in development work. At nearly every important farm meeting recently, representatives of the banks have been in attendance. They are interested in the agricultural problems and their advice has merit.

People will see good livestock at the Rock county Evansville and Janesville fairs. Improvement of livestock and the establishment of better sales methods for the entire country is the biggest task in the agricultural program of Rock county. Flung down in the cold cash the livestock business of the county makes the others dwindle in proportion. Understanding that the blooded or high grade stock means better returns to the farmer and more cash to his credit to purchase merchandise in the city, prosperity demands that everyone enlist their efforts to help in the better livestock work.

Much has been accomplished in Rock county this year in farm improvement. Special stress has been made on the marketing problems of the farmers. Give the farmer a good market and he can buy what he wants. Give him a poor market return and he's broke.

Sureness This Year. Some of the outstanding successes in Rock county this year, partly due to the constantly growing cooperative spirit are as follows:

Building of an adequate stock pavilion for county sales, livestock demonstrations and judging.

Formation of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' Association to market the 1922 crop. Failure in Rock county was predicted for this venture at the start, but hard work put the pavilion with the result that Rock county has fully 75 percent of this year's crop under contracts.

Flight Disease.

"Tobacco will not be grown on fields next year which have shown diseased plants this year," he said.

There is little doubt that the disease was present in Dane county last year. Dr. Fricker said, "its discovery was not made until last June. When it showed itself for the first time in the United States, in North Carolina, in 1917, the tobacco crop lost there was $3,000,000 in a single year."

Some growers have confused the disease with ordinary tobacco rust.

They are somewhat similar in appearance, according to the entomologist.

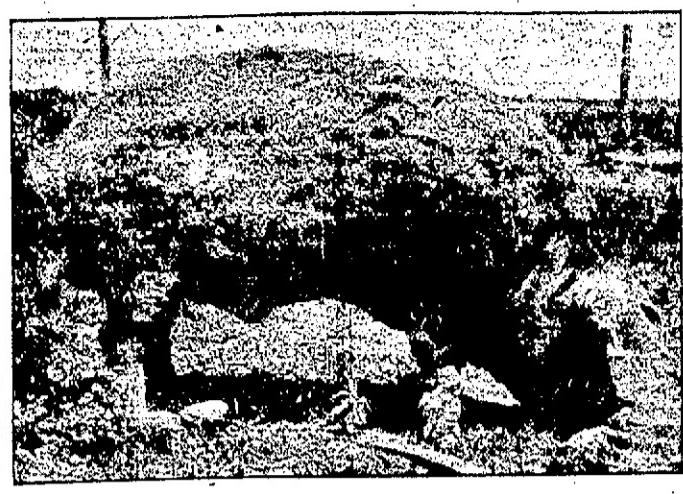

"It is much more serious than rust, as small-pox is more severe than chicken-pox," he said. "The average grower can tell the difference by the pale areas the size of a nickel or dime surrounding a single dark point. Later in the season, these spots become numerous, run together, the dead tissue falls out and the leaf is ruined."

Committee at Work.

A committee of growers, cooperating with the department of agriculture is formulating a state organization. It consists of Gander Field, Madison; chairman; Albert Larson, Madison; Herman Lohse, Sun Prairie; son has been active in the management of the farm and herd and it is believed he will carry on the work.

A Rock County Champion

TOP MONSTER.

Correct Type Chester White sows owned by Butts and Babcock, Evansville.

Chester Whites are an old American breed of swine originating in Pennsylvania. Rock county has a number of the white hogs and one in particular is as good as any in Wisconsin.

Butts and Babcock, south of Evansville, have been breeding this type of swine for the last 14 years and as a result of their constructive and studied work stand as top-notchers.

WILDFIRE CAUSING LOSS TO GROWERS

New Disease Spreads in Dane and Rock Counties.

"Wildfire" will cause tobacco growers from $20,000 to $30,000 losses in Rock and Dane counties, it is believed.

While the outbreak has not been serious in Rock county there has been some fields damaged by the disease, the loss to the individual growers will not be materially heavy. Should heavy rains come during this month the loss will be reduced in the Rock county section.

"If it isn't wildfire, then it is something else that hits the farms everyday," was the expression of one grower. "Last year it was worms. We always gamble on the crop."

Some Damage Here.

Between 60 and 70 farms in Dane county have been damaged by the disease. It is being controlled by the state. Some of the infection on farms west of Janesville show only a one or two percent damage to the plants.

The total loss in the state will not be great. It is the introduction of the disease to Wisconsin which gives the growers serious concern. A statement issued by the state departments on the disease follows:

"It is the object of the department to prevent the wide spread of the disease this year, and we can assure farmers who have suffered from wildfire, that the department is formulating plans by which we hope to guarantee clean plants in 1923. Control measures will be taken to prevent the use of any plants from the infected areas."

Fight Disease.

"Tobacco will not be grown on fields next year which have shown diseased plants this year," he said.

There is little doubt that the disease was present in Dane county last year. Dr. Fricker said, "its discovery was not made until last June. When it showed itself for the first time in the United States, in North Carolina, in 1917, the tobacco crop lost there was $3,000,000 in a single year."

At Last—A Real Pavilion

Rock county's new livestock pavilion built by the farmers of Rock county and Janesville business men will be opened for use for the first time next Tuesday at the fair. All fair stock contests will be settled in the timbered arena of the pavilion building.

There are seals for 1,000 people, all commanding a clear view of the judges ring.

The ring is divided off with chains at the same time. Judges at the fair will give short lectures on the merits of the animals being judged to give information desired by all breeders and the juniors on the points sought to make animals prize winners.

For years Rock county talked of its females and its productions of hens, the latter having sold for a number of years at record prices. A building a stock building to be used

Big Dairy Parade in Fond du Lac to Open Ad Drive

Fond du Lac county will open the opening gun in Wisconsin's dairy advertising project with a dairy parade to be held in Fond du Lac, August 12. The directors of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation will meet in Fond du Lac on August 11.

The united support of practically every county, as well as the county board association, has been assured for the national public relations campaign for Wisconsin dairy products.

The campaign adopted by the association is for every dairyman to contribute one day's production from their farms towards financing the campaign to increase consumption of Wisconsin dairy products. There is to be a national exposition of Wisconsin products and the east in particular will be the object of the drive to increase the use of Badger dairy goods.

Next F. B. Session to Be in Chicago; Have Women's Dep't.

The fourth annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation will be held in Chicago. The date is December 11-14, 1922. It will be the most important convention of farmers ever held.

The executive committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation is in session in the Chicago office. On Monday, the various committees met with the heads of the departments over which they have supervision and prepared the semi-annual reports.

"The Valley Incomparable" is one name for Yosemite park. The sheer immensity of the cliffs will startle you and please you. The Yosemite falls drop 1,430 feet. Nowhere else is there such a water spectacle as this. Information on Yosemite furnished free by the Gazette travel bureau.

All plant beds on infected farms shall be destroyed without delay, preferably by burning the plants before plowing under. All covers of 1922 plant beds shall be boiled in the sun and all lumber used in the seed bed frames shall be burned or sterilized as follows:

All plants showing infection in the bud and all infected leaves of other plants are to be taken off the field, and destroyed as soon as discovered. The entire field should be inspected every three or four days.

All beds showing 50 percent or more of plants infected in the bud are to be destroyed entire.

All persons except owners and necessary workers are to be kept out of infected fields.

Fields infected in 1922 shall be plowed within 10 days after harvest or before the suckers get a good start.

No tobacco seed shall be grown on infected farms, and seed from uninfected areas or seed sterilized under supervision shall be used for the 1923 crop.

On all infected farms, the seed beds and fields in 1923 shall be located on land not planted to tobacco in 1922.

Only new or sterilized covers and lumber shall be used for 1923 seed beds.

Rubbish in the sheds from 1922 crop must be burned and the stalks may not be applied to 1923 tobacco.

No plant shall be set out in 1923 from seed beds in the infection area until after they shall be examined and passed by inspectors of the department of agriculture.

Fair Pens Ready for Stock After Thorough Spraying

Every pen and stall for livestock at the Janesville fair is being sprayed with creosol solution to the health inspection of Dr. Arthur J. Knialans. The health work was planned by the fair board under the direction of the federal tester for this district and during the last three days, Dr. Knialans has been diligent in the work.

The swine pens were cleaned and sprayed to prevent any chance for cholera infection. Every inch of the pens were sprayed and attention paid to the feed boxes.

"The pens will be pretty safe when we get through," declared Dr. Knialans, "and they are going to be kept sanitary during the fair." All cattle exhibited must have a clean bill of health before they are allowed on the grounds. Dr. Knialans will also have charge of this inspection and testing work.

The Totem of Black Hawk

This long waiting, under such circumstances of suspense and danger, was harrowing to the nerves, dreadful to endure; but the plowmen, from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, had to endure many days and many months of such suspense and peril before our great country could be wrested from the savag[e] and the wilderness; and we, who now sleep quietly in our beds at night and go about our work peacefully during the darkness.

"That was no woe!" he thought, as his blood began jumping in his veins.
"Like a human being, and quietly looking his rifle, he stopped motionless, listening intently and straining his eyes in the direction whence had come the sound that had awakened his suspicions.

Again and nearer this time, he heard the sound of a step, seemingly not more than two or three rods away. He was sure now that it was made by a human foot; and he held his cocked rifle ready to throw instantly to his shoulder.

If it should prove to be an Indian, creeping on the lonely log house, he would fire at sight and rush into the house and shut and bar the door. Such were his instructions.

Now, as Gideon stood there in the darkness waiting, watching, he swiftly reviewed just what his actions should be. He mentally calculated exactly where the door was, and how long it would take him to get there. He wondered if there would be more than one Indian, and if there were, if he could get the door safely opened before any of them could reach it.

Once more he heard the sound of a step now close at hand; and, then, from out the near-by darkness, there came with such suddenness and unexpectedness as nearly to cause his heart to jump out of his mouth, a loud halloo; and the form of a tall man stepped out of the darkness not a rod away and repeated the halloo.

By this time Gideon had his wits

The Cuban Secretary of the Treasury reports a floating debt of $76,000,000, while more than $30,000,000 was due government employees June 30. An external loan of $50,000,000 has been recommended to clear up the situation, as the secretary does not consider the internal loan could be raised.

The Journal of Commerce estimates cotton crop condition as of July 24 at 74.1 per cent, an increase of 1.7 per cent over May, and a gain of 1.6 per cent over July 16, 1921, when conditions fell as low as 67.3 per cent. Attributable weather was generally responsible for the improvement, which is the largest increase for July in recent years except the gain of 3.3 per cent in 1920. The condition of 74.1 represents an average of 34,855,000, which under normal conditions would indicate yield of 12,125,000 bales, which compares with an actual output of 7,953,644 bales in 1921, 13,439,003 in 1920, and 16,134,930 in the record year of 1924.

Manufactures Are Within Ten Percent of Normal Level

There has been pronouncedly increased activity in the production of automobiles and railroads equipment, in building and in production of all building materials, says the Guaranty Survey. This improvement has been accompanied by betterment in many other lines, as is evident from the unusually large number of freight cars loaded this spring with commodities which come under merchandise. Statistics of production generally show that, in spite of the depression caused by strikers, the rate of production of manufactures has reached a point within 10 per cent of levels estimated as normal for the present year.

Demand Abroad for American Bonds

A demand from abroad for American securities has lately been a feature of the market. Gold demand has come chiefly from Holland and Switzerland, where money rates are low and surplus funds in large amounts appear to be available for investment. Interest is centered in Liberty Bonds and foreign dollar bonds issued in the United States, which are tax-free to non-resident aliens, as well as in the standard railroad issues with which foreign purchasers are familiar.

Many railroad bonds of both the first and second grades sold in a month ago were purchased by the incorporation of reduced rate schedules and a walkout of certain classes of employes. Such a movement denotes a feeling on the part of investors that fundamentally there has been an improvement in the position of the roads during 1922. This conclusion is verified by the operating results to date, but it is realized that a serious retardation of industry due to prolonged transportation difficulties would result eventually in the returns of the carriers.

The number of bonds called for payment substantiates the belief that corporations may reasonably be expected to follow the policy of calling high coupon bonds which they have put out in the last few years. The decline in interest rates makes it advantageous to refund these issues on a lower basis, and the majority of them have the necessary redemption provision. The calls are small and occur at or below their original issue price, of course, attractive as bank investments, but for individual investors long-term securities seem more desirable, and with this in mind a number of exchanges are being effected.

Farmers Supply Half of Exports

New York.—The collapse of Europe's buying power has thrown thousands of farmers into bankruptcy, says Agnes C. Laub in the August number of "Our World." Prices of dairy cows have fallen from $200 to $50 per head. Prices to the farmer for canned beef have fallen from $70 to $3. Recently a herd worth $20,000 was sold for $2,500. During the war farming became the greatest export industry, supplying more than half of our total exports. Now that Europe has no money with which to buy American farmers are faced with one of the greatest crisis in history. They have grown to depend on Europe for their market. The profound change indicated by the fact that at the Agriculture Conference farmers actually went on record as favoring a ship subsidy. Heretofore the farm constituencies have been the greatest obstacle to the development of a Merchant Marine.

Exports Gain in Farm Products

Exports of merchandise for June, amounting to $334,000,000, were larger than for any month since last October, while exports for the second quarter of the year, totaling $980,000,000, were more than $100,000,000 in excess of the exports for the first quarter and larger by $25,000,000 than those for the last quarter of 1921. Imports, reaching $550,000,000 in June, were larger than for any month since December, 1920. These comparisons indicate the recent improvement of our foreign trade, especially of our merchandise exports.

Moreover, although the general trend of wholesale prices has been upward, the advances on the whole have been moderate. The wholesale price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics for June advanced only 1.33 per cent over the previous month, compared with an advance of 3.5 per cent.

Much forward buying probably took place before the advanced prices became effective, and this is not the season for large commitments by manufacturers unless prices appear particularly attractive. It is, therefore, doubtful if the general wholesale price level has yet reached the point which will check the buying of those consumers whose wants are still unsatisfied. Consequently, the reappearance of the major downward swing of prices, which is indicated by a long-time view of affairs.

WORLD BUSINESS CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVING, SAYS GEO. PARKER

Janesville Pen Maker, Home from Trip Around Globe, Brings Optimism

BY GEORGE S. PARKER.

Yes, it seems good to be back home!

After an absence of nearly eight months, traveling and encircling the globe, going up and down the earth more or less in a zig-zag manner so that the number of miles traveled totals up something like 36,000 miles; after seeing many cities in various countries, Janesville still appears to me stronger than any place I have seen in any part of the world.

We started out early in December of last year. Our itinerary, except in a general way, was to be made up as we traveled.

After leaving this country, we went to England, where we stayed some three weeks. After finishing my business in this country, we went to Antwerp and Brussels, Belgium, where a stop of a number of days was made; thence north to Amsterdam where a similar stop was made. Then up through the northwestern corner of Europe to Hamburg and then over to Denmark up as far as Copenhagen. After this we returned to Hamburg, traveling through Germany, making our longest stop—a little less than a week—in Stuttgart.

After Stuttgart, we went to France, making Paris our headquarters. From Paris we went to Switzerland and from Geneva through the great Simplon Tunnel to Milan and from Milan to Venice, from which port we sailed via one of the Italian steamship lines for Bombay. Enroute to Bombay we stopped at Port Said, which is the entrance to the Suez canal. Then, the next stop was Aden, Arabia. Then no further stop was made until we reached Bombay.

In South Sea Islands.

From Bombay we went into Northern India to Agra, Delhi, Lucknow, Benares, and other cities, eventually south to Calcutta. From Calcutta we went to Rangoon and then farther south to Peiping and eventually on to Singapore Strait Settlements. From Singapore we went south across the equator down among the South Sea Islands, eventually reaching Java.

After a stay exceeding two weeks in Java, we returned to Singapore, then north again into the British Malay States, a portion of the trip being steamed in balance by automobile.

Then south again to Singapore where eventually we sailed for Manila. After a stay of some days in Manila and surrounding territory, we sailed for Hongkong, then to Canton and back to Hongkong; thence to Shanghai by boat and from Shanghai by rail through China, a distance of approximately 1,000 miles, north to Tientsin and Peking. Returning from Peking to the West, we took a Japanese steamer sailing for the Far East. From Kobe we went to Kyoto, Yokohama and Tokyo and eventually back to Yokohama, sailing then for Hawaii where again, for the first time, we were on U. S. soil; and then sailing from Honolulu for San Francisco, then north to Portland, Spokane and Minneapolis, and finally arriving in Janesville.

The trip in some respects has been a hard one, but altogether a pleasant one. Never before have I seen what a vast number of human beings live outside the United States. One should remember that in India there dwell a sufficient number of Indians, the sum total of which equals one-fifth of the entire population of the earth; or, in other words, one person to every five of the earth's population is an Indian—men and women whose features are fine and regular as those of any white race, but who are dark-skinned, yet their color is brown or even black, having been made so by the many successive centuries in which they or their forefathers have lived under the blazing rays of the tropic sun.

40,000,000 in Java.

Few people realize that on that little oblong island known as Java, forming one island of a group, there dwell 40,000,000 people, almost one-half the total number to be found in the United States. It is said to be the most thickly populated country in the world, exceeding 600 people to the square mile for the entire island. Java, it should be remembered, is south of the equator but close enough so that it is an exceedingly warm country and the heat, especially in the low-lands, is very oppressive.

China, for instance, is a vast territory, but it is difficult to realize just how large it is. In this respect, I am inclined to think the Japanese hotel-keepers stand at the top of hotel-keepers anywhere in the world. They are so polite, so suave, so eager to make your sojourn in the hotel a pleasant one that one cannot fail to depart from a Japanese hotel with feelings other than those which have spent a pleasant period. The little acts of courtesy, the little attentions shown for the guest, small in themselves, perhaps, but they count much with the tourist who is away from home.

Business Conditions

Business conditions practically all over the world, so far as I have seen, are on the upturn. This is fortunate for us, but not only a letter of credit issued by the National City Bank of New York but also a letter of introduction from the same bank, the latter of which proved to be one of the most valuable assets I could carry. It gave me entree to managers or presidents of any banks upon which I chose to call for information, either credit or financial, and was exceedingly helpful. These bank managers represent great foreign interests, such as the International Banking Corporation, the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Cox & Company, each representing one of a great syndicate of banks with almost limitless resources and many branches, were in a position to give me valuable information in regard to the credit and to steal their islands and it is said that any photographer who gets caught photographing some of these prohibited places is arrested and treated rather roughly.

Heavy Traffic in Japan.

It is difficult to express on paper just how Japan impresses one. They are certainly & good many years in advance of China so far as modern buildings and the general condition of the cities is concerned. They are wide awake, progressive, inquisitive, and do not sustain the reputation for honesty such as is accorded to the Chinese. Japan has surrounded herself with an almost impermeable tariff law. This, for instance, on fountain pens and similar things cost 50 per cent. On manufactured goods 200 per cent and a great many other things in like proportion. They go on the plan of getting everything they can and giving just as little as they possibly can in return. I am happy to say, under the circumstances, that Japan had all the appearance of a country that was industrially bad off.

Front Road to Osaka, a ride of about an hour, on a fast express train, disclosed the fact that there was almost a continuous line of factories along the seacoast between these two cities. I do not think more than 25 per cent of these "war baby factories" (for that is what I was informed they were called) had any smoke coming from the chimneys. This tells the story briefly of conditions as I saw them in Japan.

Yokohama, the great sea port of Japan, is naturally more prosperous perhaps than other parts on account of the vast amount of shipping that comes and goes. Tokio which is about 45 minutes by train from Yokohama is a great city spread over an immense territory and, as everybody knows, is the capital of Japan. While I was there I attended the International Pen exhibition which is something similar to the Exposition of Progress now going on in Chicago. Tens of thousands of people were in attendance, viewing the beautiful exhibits, but I do not now recall having seen one foreign exhibit; nor was I able to find one person out of the many I encountered and tried to talk to who could speak a single word of English. Strange as it may seem many of the Japanese have never before seen a foreigner or so few, but what we were looked upon as great curiosities. When we would stop for a moment, a crowd would collect around us and stare at us as though we were a peculiar looking type of people.

Business Opportunities

I regard the situation as relating to business opportunities in Asia, at the present time as one of an exceptional opportunity for American manufacturers.

In India there is a strong feeling on the part of the natives, naturally under the existing conditions, against the English. An American looked upon as a real brother of the Indian and just what the reason is not clear in my mind.

All things being equal, the Indian will buy an American product instead of buying from any other country, and especially when compared with that of England.

The same is true in the Federated Malay States, which is also an English possession and a very rich one.

The natives there are not as hostile to the English government as they are to the English government.

So far as I could learn, there is very little discontent among the Malays in the Federated Malay States. If there was, it was kept carefully concealed.

The bulk of the business of the Federated Malay States, so far as the store keepers are concerned, is done by either Malays or Chinese or a mixture of both.

India Is Armed Camp.

In that great country of India, if once the political questions could be settled, India under present conditions would take wondrous strides.

The great trouble in India, in my judgment at the present time is the getting re-adjusted to altered war conditions.

It may be a surprise to some to learn that several hundred thousand Indians were in the great World War and they were gotten into the war, so I was informed, by rather long promises as to certain reforms, etc., that would be brought about in India upon their return.

Sometimes promises made in the glow of enthusiasm or necessity are forgotten after the necessity is a thing of the past. My opinion is that Germany have no real intention of ever redeeming the billions of marks which have been lost.

Business Conditions in Switzerland

Conditions in Germany were peculiar. Practically no unemployment there but there seemed to be a feeling of sort of "I don't care a d—" set, whatever was working, for the most part, the factory chimneys were belching forth smoke.

The people, so far as I could see, were drinking just as much beer as they did prior to the war. Cafes and restaurants were crowded. The cost of living in Germany was so cheap it seemed almost a joke; a cigar, almost equal to my favorite brand in the United States, could be bought for 10 cents. Reduced to American gold, and a five-course dinner from soup to nuts with wine and cigars would total up less than 10 cents, including a tip to the waiters.

What the outcome of German finance will be no one can guess. It looks to me as though it was an utter impossibility for them to redeem the vast quantity of marks which have been printed and which are being printed, and after talking to bankers in Germany, my private opinion is that the financial interests of Germany have no real intention of ever redeeming the billions of marks which have been lost.

Business Conditions in the Philippines

Business conditions in the Philippines are very similar to that of Holland.

Conditions in Italy were considerably better, although at the time we were there, the lire were a little less than 5 cents and people were complaining about the low price of the lire, while in Switzerland they were complaining that money was too high so it seems impossible to please everybody.

Julius Is Armed Camp.

In that great country of India, if once the political questions could be settled, India under present conditions would take wondrous strides.

The great trouble in India, in my judgment at the present time is the getting re-adjusted to altered war conditions.

It may be a surprise to some to learn that several hundred thousand Indians were in the great

World War and they were gotten into the war, so I was informed, by rather long promises as to certain reforms, etc., that would be brought about in India upon their return.

Sometimes promises made in the glow of enthusiasm or necessity are forgotten after the necessity is a thing of the past. My opinion is that this, together with some religious feeling in the matter, is accountable, to a large extent, for India being and the necessity for India having the appearance as it was when we were there of a great armed camp. I was informed there was something like 50,000 English soldiers in India and perhaps 100,000 native troops. The great problem with the English was in case of a spontaneous uprising, what position would the Indian troops take? Would they continue with the English or would they rally to the other side. Certainly they did not have a great degree of statesmanship on the part of the governing country.

Java is one of the richest countries in the world, probably on the face of the globe. But a short distance from the equator, its soil is so productive that it supports the population of 40,000,000 souls and, in addition to this, does a considerable export business. It is a great potential market for many things that we manufacture in America, including fountain pens and pencils.

China Most Interesting.

China perhaps is the most interesting of all the Asiatic countries. It presents a wonderful illustration of the necessity of having a first-class well equipped standing army, ditto navy. China with its 400,000,000 people is today practically the serf of England, Russia, France, Japan, and to a smaller extent some other small nations, who virtually control China. The extent of 79 per cent of her total area under the protection of "Foreign Zone of Influence." Were an individual to his neighbor what nations have, and are doing to China, they would be looked upon as plain cut-throats and bandits. It may be interesting to know that of the 79 per cent of Foreign Zone of Influence, Russia has about 10 per cent, England 27 per cent, France a fraction over 5 per cent, Japan a fraction over 5 per cent and I am happy to say that the United States has no zone of influence in China, although there are several hundred American soldiers in the city of Peking. These soldiers, however, are there in accordance with the treaty made on account of the Boxer uprising in 1900 and agreed to for the keeping open of the railroad between Peking and Tientsin.

Japan presents a curious problem.

On every line leading into Japan and on Japanese steamships as well are signs notifying people with cameras not to photograph the harbors or even the ocean in what is known as the prohibited zone. The Japs seem to be rickshaws running who perhaps could understand a little English and these rickshaws follow for the most part. If treated well, and respond to decent treatment.

The people who take this wide-wide trip, the better it will be for the United States, for they will realize what a wonderful potential market there is for American products. I hope my fellow manufacturers will avail themselves of this fact and act accordingly.

After all, the best part of the world is in getting home. The cordial and I believe genuine words of welcome "Good to see you" make one feel interested in the man who knows you best and still likes you.

Prohibition.

No, we did not find any country where prohibition was in force. In fact the open drinking of liquor in all parts of the world we have visited is done to an extent much greater than I anticipated. In this connection it may be interesting to know that we saw more drunken noisy men in Japan than in all the other countries combined. The Englishmen, Americans, Board Press and that, for the most part, the executives of this plant are Christians and that they have never permitted anything to be printed in their great plant which is derogatory to Christianity.

These people publish at 40 per cent of the school books of China and have a system of work which for their employees that would shame many an American concern.

They do grades of regular printing, offset printing, color printing, lithographic, etc., that would be considerable of a size to their American craftsman if they could see it.

This tells the story briefly of the Chinese trade.

American motor cars are seen everywhere in the Orient. I would say that 90 per cent of the cars in operation are made in America.

There are a few French in evidence and a French car called the Criterion, which, I believe, is either of the one or two larger variety and which we saw in Japan some 40 or 45 miles on a gallon of gas. It is not very beautiful and about the only thing that recommends it to the purchaser is its immense mileage per gallon.

Railways and Transportation Methods

In India there is an excellent system of railways operated, however, entirely different from those of the United States. You buy your ticket, first, second or third class, as the case may be. If in the first class, you will be assigned to a compartment, take your place and keep your ticket until you arrive at your journey's end. One English official in response to a question I put to him as to when the conductor was going to come and punch my ticket, informed me that we were not to give up the tickets until we arrived at our journey's end, and that any man inclined to be dishonest could ride from one end of the road to the other without being seen if he was a little careful and believe this was true. Another English conductor told me a great many people stole sides on the Indian railroads and informed me that once in a while inspectors checked up the trains. Only a day or two before inspection stopped and checked up a train and there were some 200 people aboard without tickets.

All things being equal, the Indian will buy an American product instead of buying from any other country, and especially when compared with that of England.

The same is true in the Federated Malay States, which is also an English possession and a very rich one.

The natives there are not as hostile to the English government as they are to the English government.

The dining car-service is poor. It is operated, however, very much like the dining car service in this country. The meals are so much per meal, and not a la carte.

In China, the trains are rather improved in the way than the trains of India. They have a conductor, who is provided for the servants, the servant immediately as soon as he arrives at the end of the car which is provided for the servants. At every stop the servant immediately goes to your compartment and, if you want to go to bed, simply notify him. He usually beds down, which you must carry and own, down does the work, makes up the bed and then goes back to his compartment.

The compartments are fitted with toilets that have an immense bath tub for it that dusty and dry country, the Englishman feels he cannot go to bed without a bath. So, in that particular respect, it is rather ahead of most anything I have seen in America.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

MAKING DETECTOR FOR VACUUM TUBE RECEIVING SET

By LLOYD JACQUET, L. R. E.
The vacuum tube detector and its controls are the only additional essentials for the operation of the intermediate wave receiver described in the Evening Mail.

The vacuum tube base may be of any standard make. It will be found cheaper to buy this equipment than to make it. The four prongs will make contact with the pins of the tube are marked G, "Grid," "P" for Plate, "F" for "Fil," for the negative connection of the filament, and "R" for the positive connection.

The connections to these terminals are made as shown in the diagram.

The grid condenser has a capacity of .00023 Mfd., and the grid leak value is approximately 1 megohm, the value varying with the characteristics of the tube. A black 22-volt battery will supply the plate voltage, and a 6-volt battery, preferably a 6 volt 40-to-60-ampere-hour storage battery, will provide the current for the filament of the vacuum tube.

A rheostat of about 1% impediment will serve to regulate the filament current to the correct operating value.

The set is carefully connected, as shown in the diagram, of connections. Every joint should be soldered if possible, for leaky and microphonic contacts will interfere considerably with the efficient operation of the circuit. The vacuum tube is lighted by turning the rheostat slowly.

If the set has been properly wired, and if the tickler coupling is at maximum, a beating note will be heard in the telephone receivers. The set is then said to be "oscillating." If any difficulty is experienced in making the set oscillate, the tickler connections should be reversed. The beating note will then be heard.

Just how the regenerative effect is obtained will be seen from the following: An overall impulse is introduced by the antenna when applied to the grid of the detector tube releases a certain amount of energy in the plate circuit. That is, the tube acts as a relay or valve, which releases a certain amount of energy from the local "B" battery, and this energy actuates the telephone receivers.

Now, if part of the energy is fed back into the grid circuit again, it follows that the energy operating the valve will be increased, that much and that a greater amount of energy will be allowed to flow into the telephone receivers.

This regenerative process cannot be repeated indefinitely, for there are losses which must be compensated. These losses in the grid circuit are made up by the plate circuit and are supplied through the "ticker coil." This effect of feeding back the energy results in amplified signals. Amplification of about 100 times may be secured with a well-built regenerative receiver.

A little practice will enable the operator to tune in the signals on this regenerative set. First set the tickler coil half way on the scale. Then vary the induction switch until the loudest response is obtained in the receiver. A readjustment of the tickler coil at this time will bring the signals very clearly.

A point will be reached where the signal will become "mushy." The best point is just before this effect is noticeable. Signals which cannot be heard with the plain tuner will be audible as soon as the tickler coil is adjusted to the correct position.

Questions and Answers

If I erect a 31-ft. antenna in my apartment and use a receiving set made up of the following parts will I be able to hear the WIZ concerts: Loading coil, two honcomb coils, two fixed condensers, detector and 2,200 ohms receivers? If not, what additions and improvements do you suggest? —FRANK VOISKY.

You do not mention the type of detector you contemplate using. The editor is of the opinion that you will not be very successful with an indoor antenna of the dimensions you mention and with the equipment you have. A vacuum tube detector used in a regenerative circuit, in conjunction with a two or three step amplifier, would give far better results.

How many meters can I tune to on a home-made loose coupler consisting of a primary coil, 1x 1/4 inches wound on a 1x 1/2 turns of No. 22 wire, and a secondary tube, 6x3 1/2 inches, with 180 turns of wire? I have a crystal detector, a 75 ohm receiver and an antenna 100 feet long and 60 feet high. Can I receive the concerts? —LBO LEVY.

It is impossible to give the range of wave lengths the tuner you describe will respond to unless the size of antenna is known. As far as I know, your antenna is 10 feet long, so you will probably be able to tune to a wave length of 2,000 to 3,000 meters. If you include in the equipment you have some sort of a tuner you should have no trouble in receiving the broadcast, provided your location is good. A pair of 2,000 ohm receivers would give better results.

Would a coil damaged by a tap broken off all right if the tap was soldered back in place again? A says yes and B says no. —VICTOR WENZEL.

You tell B to think the matter over more carefully. He is wrong. Call again with something hard.

I have an aerial with four wires, 100 feet long. The wires are spaced 12 feet apart, and the lead-in is 40 feet long. What is the fundamental wave length? —M. J.

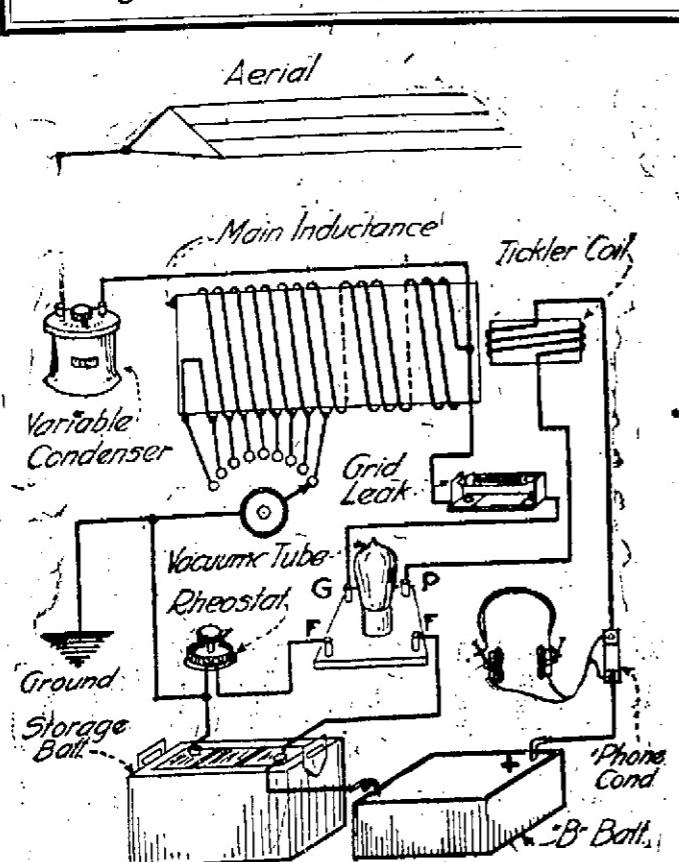

The wave length of this aerial will be in the neighborhood of 300 meters. This is as close as the editor can figure without knowing the length of your ground wire. Don't forget to include this the next time, Mr. M. J.

Is it safe to operate a crystal set without a lightning switch? Can you connect the ground wire from a lightning switch to the gas pipe? —L. VOGEL.

Don't play with dynamite, Mr. Vogel. Better put a real lightning switch in and then you will be able to open the door when the underwriter's inspector comes nosing around. The writer has warned amateurs again and again that lightning is no respecter of persons.

Kindly tell me how to connect

Butter Production in 7th District

Production of butter in the Seventh Federal Reserve district and for the country as a whole was larger in June than in May, but egg receipts were less. Receipts of cheese at Wisconsin markets increased over those of the previous month but declined the first half of July.

Butter fat continues to bring the farmer a little more money than a year ago. The price of 32-cent creamery butter averaged 33.50 cents per pound at Chicago in June compared with 34.50 cents in May.

Prices of eggs and poultry were lower than in the previous month and up in the middle of July showed no tendency to react.

Receipts of butter, poultry, and cheese at Chicago were larger during the first half of July.

CHARLES IRON.

If you have a small aerial you will probably not be able to hear WYCE with this outfit?

W. MCINNIS.

The editor is stumped, Mr. McInnis. Don't know what can be wrong. Your aerial may be too long. If so, you are unable to tune low enough for the broadcasting stations.

F. L. BAGLEE.

No. 30 silk-covered wire is a bit too small to use for winding a tuning coil. No. 22 bare copper wire is just about the right size. When winding bare wire wind a piece of heavy thread or twice or another piece of wire with it. When the winding is completed, remove the cord or extra wire, and the turns will be evenly spaced. Bare wire should not be wound with each turn touching, otherwise the coil will be "shorted."

H. A. CANGHEY.

You neglected to mention your phone, Mr. Canghey, but the writer will assume that you have a pair. Yes, you can use a vacuum tube detector with this outfit. It will replace your crystal receiver. You will need a "B" battery, a filament rheostat and an "A" battery.

GRID.—The element placed between the plate and the filament of a vacuum tube. The value and use of the grid was discovered by De Forest.

Dan Cupid has cooked up a rumor which has set the puzzle experts of Britain to working overtime. It is reported that Megan Lloyd George is to marry

Sir Philip Sassoon and that, perhaps, the Prince of Wales may select Sassoon's sister, Lady Rockavage, to be the future queen of England. Now then, one at a time, what will Megan's papa, David Lloyd George, be to Wales' papa, King George? Now that that's answered, "How old is Ann?"

Refitting Spring Ends

THIS IS A JOB most of which the mechanically inclined owner can perform himself. Jack the car frame up securely until the spring is perfectly free. Remove the lock-nuts from its bolts and screw the bolts out of their hangers or shackles. Remove the nuts from the clip bolts which secure the spring to the axle and take out the spring. To remove the old eye bushings, pass the detached blade of a backsaw through a bushing, fasten it in the car frame and saw the bushing clear through when it can readily be driven out with a round bar, used as a punch. Take the spring and the new bushings to a shop where they have a press and get them to press the new bushings into place in the spring eyes. They can be driven in with a special, shouldered punch of the right form and size, but they are likely to be battered. Try the bolts in the bushings, at the shop, to see that they enter freely and otherwise have them reamed until they will do so. Insert the spring in its fixed suspension first, screwing in the bolt until side play is taken up, screw on and cotter-pin the lock nut, then treat the shackled spring-end similarly and finally insert the clip bolts and securely tighten their nuts, afterwards fastening them up with their lock-nuts. Extreme care is needed to get the clips tight and a subsequent tightening is sometimes required after the car has been run a little.

ANTI-LEAK MATERIAL CLOGS RADIATOR

These preparations being miscible with water and transparent again or fog settles on the glass uniformly and does not remain either in separate drops. Glycerine, being transparent, is also miscible with water and makes a good windshield dressing. It should be diluted with one-half its volume of water and a small pinch of salt added. Soak a piece of cheesecloth with this liquid and wipe the outside of the glass with downward strokes.

TROUBLE WITH HEADLIGHTS

A. A. A. writes: To stop a leak in the radiator of my car, I put in a quantity of ground flax seed, but this has stopped up the passages so that circulation is now obstructed and the water boils after a few miles running. Is there anything that I can do to clean this out? Answer: You might try filling the cooling system with a solution of lime in the proportion of one pound to five gallons of water, running the engine idle until this liquid becomes hot, drawing it off and then flushing the system thoroughly with clean water. As there will have to be a soldering job done to stop the leak, it would perhaps be as well to take the radiator, as it is, to a professional repairman, who will have better facilities than you for cleaning out the core passages, including both alkaline and acid baths.

WINDSHIELD DRESSING

G. L. G. writes: I cannot run two good headlights from the magneto of my Ford. Have tried 15, 24 and 27 C. P. 9 volt bulbs and 27 C. P. 6-8 volt bulbs, wired in parallel connection, but they are not properly bright. By using one 27 C. P. 9 volt bulb, this head lamp is good, but connecting in the other specific lights. The engine starts right on the magneto. Can a magneto be recharged, as I have seen stated?

Answer: The headlights of your car are intended to be operated in series connection, not in parallel and the bulbs best adapted for use in them are those which pass about 2 amperes at 8 volts per bulb with a rated C. P. of about 15 each. The bulbs you have been using are of too high rated handle, probably far more current than this magneto can furnish. Calling for too high amperage immediately reduces the magneto voltage and makes the bulbs burn dim. You should obtain good lights as other similar cars have, if you follow the above specifications, but if you do not, it would be well to have your magneto tested and, if it proves weak, to have its magnets recharged. An electrical station, which has a large storage battery, can do this charging, without any disassembling of the magneto being required.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

RED STAR

Detroit Vapor

OIL STOVE

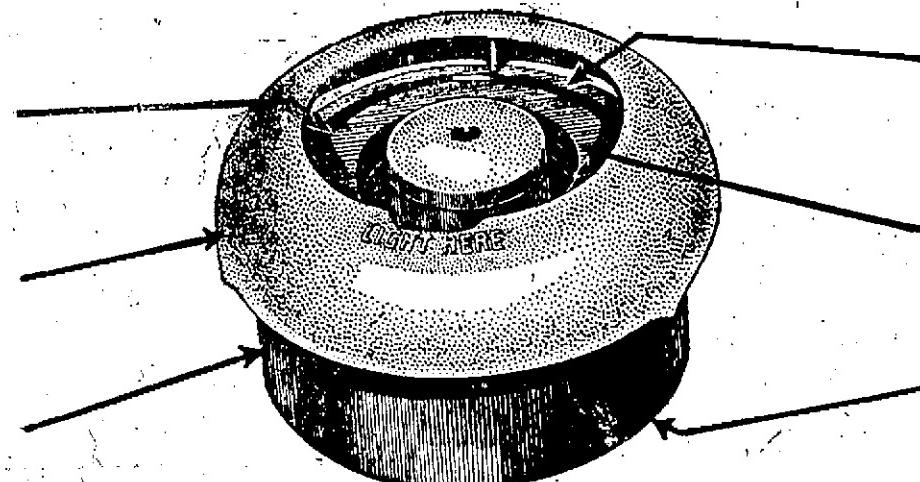

You Never Saw A Burner Like This

Red Star Burner has no wicks or wick substitutes. Fuel is vaporized into gas giving a hot blue flame.

Heat condenser is an inverted cone-shaped casting which holds the heat and forces it to strike the utensil squarely.

Burner is a solid grey iron casting annealed to withstand heating and cooling; lasts a lifetime.

Double-ring flame of intense heat directly under cooking. Burns all the fuel without smoke or smell.

Castings fit in place without fastening. Easily taken apart for cleaning. Seldom needs any attention.

Fuel flows directly into the double vaporizing rings and is mixed with air to give perfect blue flame.

Due to this Red Star all-metal burner, real heat is now a fact in an oil stove. No housewife need put up with a medium heat from her stove. No woman need deny her home the good things that require intense heat to cook.

This burner has no wicks. It uses no asbestos rings or wick substitutes of any kind. The burner is made of metal. Weighs 8½ lbs. It automatically makes a hot burning gas from kerosene, gasoline, etc.

The Red Star Burner gives two rings of hot blue gas flame instead of the usual one. In addition, the burner becomes red hot and adds this steady heat to the double ring of flame. Heat is directly underneath the cooking utensil.

This big strong burner lasts for years. There is nothing to replace—nothing to get out of order.

And besides producing such wonderful heat, it saves 25% of your fuel.

Come in and see a complete demonstration of this wonderful burner in the Red Star Oil Stove—cooks, bakes, boils, roasts equal to gas, coal, wood or electricity.

REDUCED PRICES

Radical reductions by the manufacturers enable us to sell Red Star Oil Stoves at the lowest prices for years. In addition, there are many improvements. Come in and see for yourself.
